Your Resource Guide to Combat Heroin

Includes how to detect warning signs, who to contact for help, law enforcement options and support networks.

Brought to you by
Suffolk County Executive Steve Levy

Message from Suffolk County Executive Steve Levy

Heroin has emerged as a scourge of suburbia – threatening our schools, our communities, our families and our children. This resource guide has been produced as part of Suffolk’s comprehensive 10-point plan to combat the heroin problem within our county. We believe that HELP is on the way with our Heroin Education Leads to Prevention program.

This guide contains information on how to recognize signs of drug use in children, what treatment and support options are available and how and when to contact law enforcement.

Suffolk County is creating a new Heroin Task Force in our Police Department that will be dedicated to combating this challenging problem. In addition, we are expanding our PoliceSmart education program into participating high schools to make the program available to students in grades K -12. We will be hosting Prescription Drug Drop Off Days where residents can safely deposit their unused prescription drugs. The county also has drug test kits available for parents to home-test their kids for drug use.

The Suffolk County Division of Community Mental Hygiene in the Department of Health Services oversees a network of community based substance abuse prevention and treatment programs that are available to assist you and your family. They can be reached at 853-8500 or <http://www.co.suffolk.ny.us/departments/healthservices/mentalhygiene.aspx> I also encourage you to visit the Suffolk County Prevention Resource Center at www.liprc.org, a site that promotes prevention, treatment, and community mobilization.

We believe that by working together – elected officials, law enforcement personnel, school and community leaders, and parents – we can HELP counter the tide of heroin abuse in our county.

Sincerely,

Steve Levy, Suffolk County Executive

How To Keep Your Kids Safe

The first step in keeping your kids safe from drugs is to begin talking to them about the risks of drugs and alcohol. In order to be prepared, we recommend visiting the Partnership for a Drug Free America's TimeToTalk™ website at www.TimeToTalk.org. The tips below are adapted in part from that site. Educating yourself and maintaining communication with your children is the best way to keep them safe.

1. Make sure your child knows that you are there for them and they can talk to you about anything.
2. Emphasize the importance of staying healthy in all they do.
3. Talk about ways they can slow down, relieve stress and blow off steam in healthy ways.
4. Use “teachable moments” to bring up the subject of drugs. Make reference to a fictional character, movie star, professional athlete, classmate or relative who has received attention recently for drug use. Ask whether or not your child thinks the drug use was cool, or recognizes that the person has a drug problem.
5. Be very clear about the consequences of drinking, drunk driving and drug use. Explain how addiction can wreak havoc on a person's life.
6. Discuss and role play how to turn down drugs from friends. Practicing is crucial to standing up to peer pressure.
7. Be prepared to answer the question “Did you do drugs?” Visit the website for various ways to handle this question.
8. As a parent, continue to educate yourself about the drug scene in order to know what to look for and continue to keep your kids safe.
9. Remember, if you have a conversation with your child and it doesn't go well, it's not the end of the world. Don't give up. Try again later.
10. Be aware that often underage alcohol use can be a pre-cursor to other substance abuse. Respond and monitor accordingly.

What To Do If You Suspect Drug Use

Some of the best resources can be found at www.drugfree.org, a website with age-specific guides, informative videos on how to talk to your children about drug use, and what steps to take if they are using illicit substances. The steps below are adapted from the Parent Toolkit found at www.drugfree.org

What to do if your child is using drugs – how to step in and help:

1. Determine a course of action for your child's substance abuse treatment with your spouse or other family member.
2. Speak to your child when he/she is sober and preferably not angry or upset.
3. Clearly express that you love your child and that your discussing substance abuse treatment with him or her is out of concern for his/her safety and well-being.
4. Explain that it is your obligation as a parent to make sure your child reaches adulthood as safely as possible.
5. Describe the warning signs of drug use you've observed in your child's behavior and explain that these signs warrant serious attention, family support and professional help.
6. Actively LISTEN to what your child says. Convey empathy and remain focused on the drug abuse issue at the moment.
7. To get your child thinking about substance abuse differently, ask what he/she wants out of life and how things are going in school, with friends etc...
8. Prompt your child to consider the link between substance abuse and his/her dreams or wishes.

Ask your child about the effect of substance abuse on his/her life. Establish steps to gather information on drug addiction, recovery and resources and discuss treatment.

Potential Signs of Illicit Drug Use

Physical Symptoms

- Fatigue, dramatic changes in sleeping patterns
- Persistent cough, frequent illnesses, flu or allergy like symptoms, chest pains
- Red and glassy eyes
- Decrease in short-term memory
- Change in health, personal hygiene, grooming

Physical Symptoms (Heroin Use)

- Constricted, pinpoint pupils
- Nausea, vomiting
- Constipation, cessation of menstruation
- Itching and scratching
- Weight loss
- Needle marks on arms and/or legs
- Dry mouth, runny nose, constant sniffing
- Droopy appearance, as if extremities are “heavy”

Emotional

- Personality change, mood swings
- Irritability, anger, hostility
- Irresponsible behavior, poor judgment, carelessness
- Diminished self-esteem
- Loneliness, paranoia, or depression
- Uncharacteristic lack of interest, change in interests

Family Relationships

- Decreased interest in the family and family activities
- Uncharacteristically argumentative
- Negative attitude
- Mistreatment of younger siblings
- Breaking rules, skipping curfew
- Secretiveness, withdrawal
- Evasive when accounting for time
- Lying, dishonesty, stealing
- Unexplained disappearance of money or household valuables

School Activities

- Decreased interest in schoolwork and activities
- Negative attitude, discipline problems
- Poor performance
- Irregular school attendance
- Absences, lateness

Relationships with Friends

- Distancing oneself from old friends
- New group of friends/acquaintances

A few slang terms for heroin:

- Alquitran , Anti-freeze, Aries, Beast, Big H, Brown Sugar, Brown, Black Tar (type), China White (type), Dope, Dr. Feelgood, H, Junk, Smack, Tigre de Blanco

What To Do If Your Child Is In Crisis

You have just discovered your child is using illicit substances. Your first step should be to breathe. Now, keep reading. It may be a scary time, but you are not alone and you have options, seek out support. The following, provided in part by www.drugfree.org, will help you get focused, get talking, and get help.

1. Talk with your spouse/partner and get on the same page. Nobody is to blame, come to an agreement with each other and present a unified front.
2. Have a conversation not a confrontation. Preparing yourself first will help you stay calm, loving, and direct.
3. Show your concern; let your teen know you value honesty. Be prepared to listen.
4. Create a safe environment for your child to share the truth. Eliminate interruptions such as cell phones. Consider immunity as a reward for honesty.
5. Set limits. Lay out rules to help your kids understand what you expect. Don't assume they "know" what you expect.
6. Set consequences. This helps a teenager by making clear what they are to do and not to do. For example set a 'no-use policy.'
7. Monitor your child. Weigh your concerns for your child's health against concerns for their privacy. Don't be afraid to ask questions.
8. Seek help. "Outside help" is not rehab. Outside help includes school counselors, your family doctors, maybe even a sports team coach.
9. Seek treatment. Find out the extent of the problem. Contact the nearest community based outpatient chemical dependency treatment program for a drug and alcohol assessment.
10. Make contact. For information on treatment providers call S.C. Division of Mental Hygiene at 853-8533. Referrals can also be obtained by calling 1-877-8-HOPENY.

What To Do If Your Family Is In Crisis

It is important to recognize that heroin usage, or any other form of substance abuse, can affect more people than just the addict. The following offers advice on how to assist other members of the family in crisis.

Parents

For guidance and understanding on what it means to be a parent dealing with young adult addiction and substance abuse consider visiting INTERVENE: A Community of Parents Concerned About Their Teens Alcohol and Drug Use at <http://intervene.drugfree.org/> This may provide you an understanding of how other parents live with, cope, and find treatment for their young-adult dealing with substance abuse. Also, Families Anonymous is available at 516-221-0303.

Siblings

Your non-substance-abusing children may seem okay, but they may be harboring resentment towards their sibling and even you. These feelings are natural but can be detrimental to recovery for the user and the family healing process. So, consider getting help to insure your other children are stable emotionally and understand the situation. This will aid everyone's recovery and healing. You may involve:

- A school counselor
- Other caring adults, such as a teacher, coach, aunt or uncle
- Support groups, such as Al-Anon or Ala-Teen

Locally, the Long Island Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence (LICADD) offers Family Chemical Dependency Interventions. LICADD also provides follow-up care to families and patients for six months following an intervention and stands ready to assist at every step during the recovery process. LICADD is a non-profit organization. For more information about LICADD's Family Chemical Dependency Interventions, services, or to schedule a free confidential consultation with a professional clinician, please call 631-979-1700.

The Quality Consortium of Suffolk County

www.qualityconsortium.org

The quality Consortium of Suffolk County is a partnership of 23 non-profit organizations located throughout the County that may provide comprehensive, affordable and accessible chemical dependency treatment and prevention services.

Community involvement and coordination with law enforcement will greatly help to combat the spread of heroin and may help prevent others from becoming addicted.

COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

Involved citizens are the most valuable resource any community can have in preventing crime, including the sale and use of illicit drugs. Recognizing this fact, Suffolk County has implemented a number of initiatives geared toward safely involving our citizens in preventing and reporting suspicious or unlawful activity. These programs include:

Members of the community are encouraged to report information about crimes, including specific information about drug activity, to our Crime Stoppers Hotline at 1-800-220-TIPS. All calls are kept confidential and cash rewards of up to $5,000 may be available for information leading to an arrest.

Tip Submit: A Completely Anonymous Internet Crime Tip Service

Have information regarding drug dealers or a crime but don't feel comfortable calling the police? Submit the tip utilizing our completely anonymous internet crime information reporting service called "Tip Submit." To use this service, simply fill out the form at www.tipsubmit.com and submit it. Rewards may be provided.

Text-a-Tip

Know a Drug Dealer? Text a tip regarding someone who is selling heroin, cocaine, marijuana, illegal pills, or other drugs, and you may receive up to a $500 reward. To utilize this completely anonymous service, text "SCPD" and your message to: CRIMES (274637). This texting service can be used to report information regarding other criminal activity as well.

852-COPS, an initiative of County Executive Steve Levy, enables community members to report incidents that, although not emergencies, may still require a police officer to respond. For example, callers can report drug dealing, loud parties, suspicious activity or disturbances by dialing (631)852-COPS (6677) without tying up 911. All residents are strongly encouraged to use this number to report non-emergent suspicious activity in their communities.

Neighborhood Watch

Many of our communities have partnered with the police department in establishing highly-effective Neighborhood Watch Programs. Consider joining your local Neighborhood Watch, or perhaps consider becoming a Neighborhood Watch coordinator if no program exists in your neighborhood. For more information, call 631-852-6108.

Suffolk County Police Department Heroin Arrest Tracking Map

www.suffolkpct.org. This link is the website for the Suffolk County Police Department. Once on the site click on “Information/Department Policies” and then onto “Suffolk County Drug Mapping Index.” This site provides an overview of where recent drug arrests have occurred within the county.

Heroin Overdose

In even small amounts heroin can prove fatal as the purity and actual quantity ingested is difficult to know. It is especially dangerous when used in combination with alcohol or other so-called depressant drugs, e.g., Xanax (alprazolam) or Ativan (lorazepam) or by inexperienced (non-tolerant) individuals. The risk of overdose is increased when heroin is injected. It is extremely important to obtain emergency medical treatment for anyone who may be overdosing with heroin. The following may be symptoms of heroin overdose:

- Victim appears sleepy, difficult to rouse or unconscious
- If conscious victim may be disorientated and/or delirious.
- Speech is slurred, movements are sluggish, uncoordinated and weak
- Breathing is slow, shallow and/or labored.
- Pupils are very small, "pinpoint"
- Lips and/or fingernails may be tinged blue.
- Vomiting may occur
- Pulse is weak and blood pressure is low.
- The tongue may be discolored and the mouth may be very dry.

Call 911 immediately if someone is exhibiting any of the above symptoms, or if you believe immediate medical attention may be required.
